

Early Childhood Science Teacher Wanted: Ignite Little Sparks of Curiosity at Katz Hillel Day School!

Where? The vibrant and sun-kissed Boca Raton, FL.

Who? Katz Hillel Day School of Boca Raton (KHDS) - Where curiosity blossoms and young minds grow.

Role: Full-Time Early Childhood Science Teacher - The Conductor of Curiosity

Discover the Wonders with Us: Are you passionate about planting the seeds of science in the fertile minds of the youngest learners? Katz Hillel Day School seeks an Early Childhood Science Teacher who can turn questions into quests and explorations into exciting discoveries. If you dream of creating a classroom where caterpillars become butterflies and vinegar volcanoes erupt with awe, join us in fostering a love for science among our budding explorers.

Your Laboratory of Learning:

- Inspiration Incubator: Craft engaging, hands-on science lessons that introduce our early learners to the wonders of the natural world.
- Curiosity Cultivator: Spark questions, encourage observations, and guide experiments that make every day an adventure in discovery.
- Growth Gardener: Nurture a classroom environment where every student feels encouraged to explore, ask questions, and grow their understanding of science.
- Collaboration Captain: Work closely with a team of passionate educators to weave science into the fabric of our students' learning experience, creating a holistic and enriching educational journey.
- Safety Supervisor: Ensure all scientific explorations are conducted with the highest regard for safety, making learning not only fun but also safe for all our little scientists.

We're Searching for a Scientist Who:

- Possesses a genuine love for science and an unbridled enthusiasm for teaching it to young children.
- Holds a degree in Education, Science, or a related field, with specialized knowledge or experience in early childhood education.
- Is creative, innovative, and adept at turning complex scientific concepts into accessible, engaging lessons for young learners.
- Thrives in a collaborative educational environment and is eager to share their passion for science with students, colleagues, and the community.
- Is dedicated to fostering an inclusive and supportive classroom where every young scientist feels valued and inspired.

Why KHDS Is the Place to Be:

- Be part of a vibrant community that values curiosity, discovery, and a lifelong love of learning.
- Receive competitive compensation for your role in shaping the future generation of scientists, thinkers, and innovators.
- Enjoy opportunities for professional growth and development in an environment that supports your passion for science and education.
- Experience the joy of making a real difference in the lives of children, igniting their curiosity and guiding them on their first steps into the world of science.

Ready to Experiment with Us? If you're eager to mix potions, launch rockets, and grow plants with our eager young learners, we'd love to hear from you! Please send your resume and a cover letter that showcases your passion for early childhood science education to jobs@hilleldayschool.org.
